About the Editors:

Bill Congreve is a Sydney-based writer, editor, book reviewer and publisher. He has a BA in Communications and has received a William J. Atheling award for genre criticism. He edited the anthologies, Intimate Armageddons, Passing Strange, Bonescribes and Southern Blood. His short stories have been published in magazines and anthologies in Australia and overseas, including Faerie Reel, Tenebres, Event Horizon, Terror Australis, Aurealis, Bloodsongs, and Cross-Town Traffic. His vampire stories were collected in Epiphanies of Blood. Bill has worked in Infinitas Bookshop for a number of years.

Michelle Marquardt lives in Sydney, holds an honours degree in veterinary science and wishes there were more hours in each day. Her first science fiction novel, Blue Silence, won the George Turner Prize and was short listed for both the Aurealis and Ditmar awards. Her most recent short stories have appeared in Daikaiju: Giant Monster Tales and Passing Strange.
